

The CompTIA Educational Foundation changes individual's lives for the better while providing the IT industry with a diverse, well-trained workforce. Since 1998, we have prepared thousands of individuals who have historically been underrepresented in the IT field to become qualified, productive and valuable contributors to the industry.

Our leading program, Creating Futures, is different than any other training program because we work with employers to find needs, and then train individuals to fit those needs. We service:

- U.S. military veterans
- Youth-at-risk
- Individuals with disabilities
- Minorities
- Women
- Dislocated workers

Creating Futures uses instructor-led training and online training, depending upon geographical location. Participants have access to:

- 24x7 online training
- Mentoring services
- Practice exams
- Certification vouchers

Through our affiliations with member companies and not-for-profit partners, individuals gain useful skills for permanent employment. We work with employers, training providers, and government agencies to develop model programs.

We receive support from individuals, industry leaders, and companies through contributions and grants, giving thousands of people the opportunity to pursue IT careers.

Enable people to change their lives for the better while advancing the global IT industry.

EXPERIENCES FROM PAST CREATING FUTURES PARTICIPANTS

"[Creating Futures] has helped me to be successful for the future. I'm learning computer skills and with my training I will be able to find better jobs in the future."

- Sonya Washington, The Chicago Lighthouse, Creating Futures Participant

"The online training that Creating Futures provided taught me the challenges of the IT industry and gave me the tools necessary to succeed in the IT field."

- Grahm Donovan, U.S. Army Veteran, Creating Futures Participant

"There are so many great things about this program. It is nice to see students succeed who have been counted out because of their demographic."

- Byron Thompson, St. Martin de Porres High School, Employee Coordinator
